

What are Farmers' Markets?

An opportunity to buy food and local products direct from local farmers, producers and craftsmen.

Only products which have been produced, grown, raised, baked or caught locally are at the markets. Normally these are from within 30 miles of the market (unless there is no business supplying a particular product within 30 miles).

Usually the producer's family are stallholders. They are pleased to answer questions about their products.

All stall holders must comply with relevant food safety and hygiene regulations. No genetically modified organisms can be knowingly sold. Many stall holders will be registered organic producers.
