

What is the main difference between these videos?

The main difference is the type of tool used to mash the potatoes: the first image features a traditional potato masher with a metal structure, while the second image shows a fork being used for mashing.

In one sentence, what mistake did I make in my technique (Video 2) compared to the reference video (Video 1)?

The mistake is that the onion is not stabilized with a flat cut side down on the cutting board, making the chopping less controlled and potentially more dangerous compared to the technique in the first image where the onion is more stable.
