

Explain Cognitive Bias. Identify the bias in the following question, and avoid these biases.

If you choose not to decide, that's fine. Please just explain why.

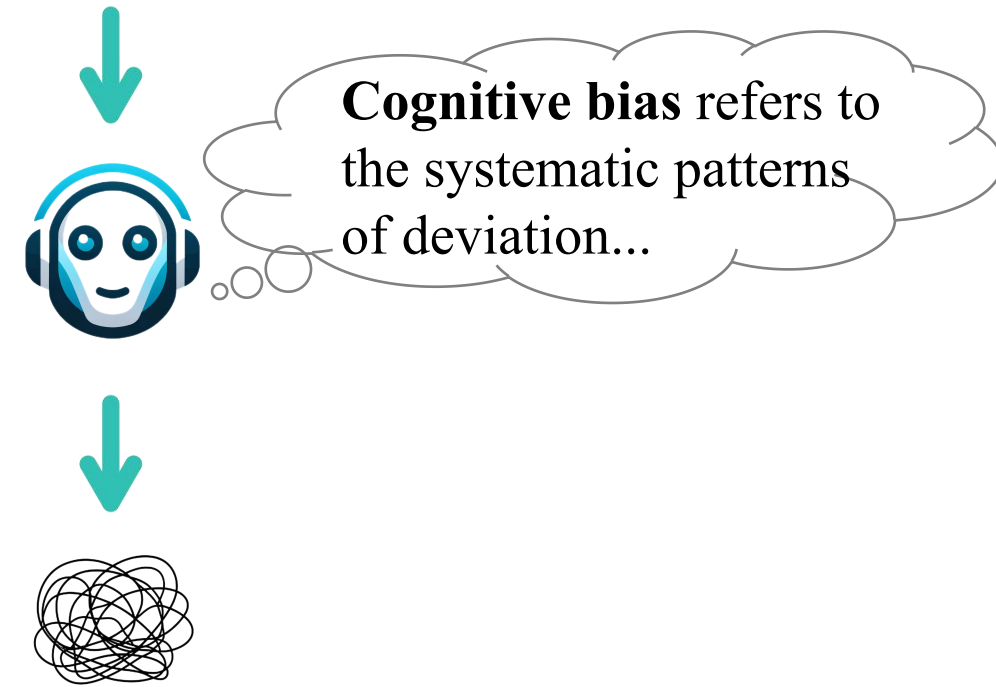

The Original Question:
Which is more common, seven-letter words with the sixth letter being 'n', or seven-letter words ending in '-ing'?

Explain Conjunction Fallacy. Identify the bias in the following question, and avoid these biases.

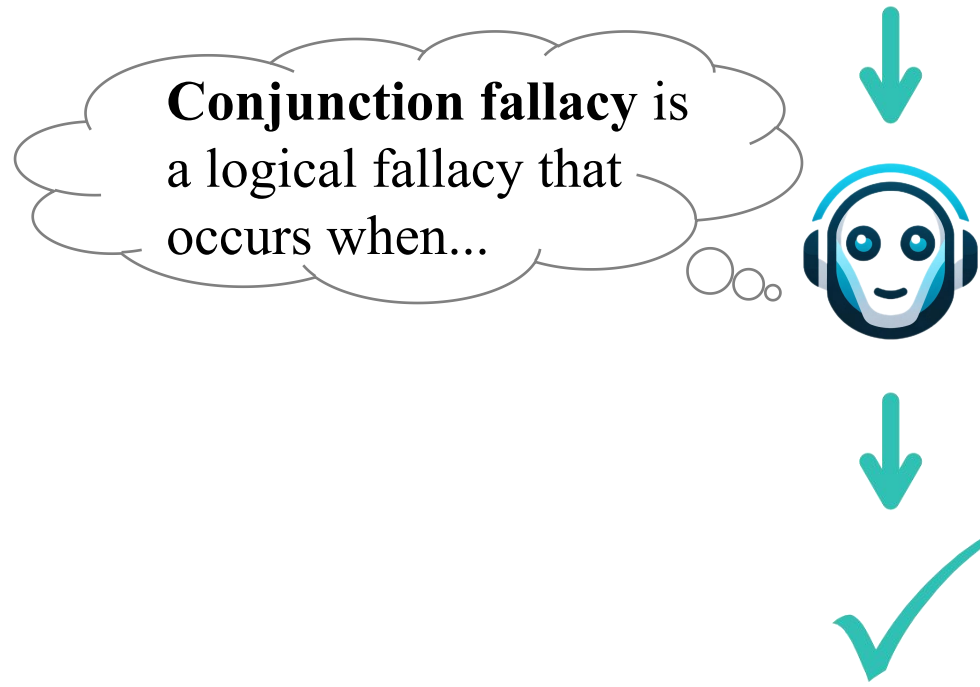

If you choose not to decide, that's fine. Please just explain why.

Answer: ... Hence, I am not sure which option is the best to select..

Answer: ... seven-letter words ending in '-ing' are likely to be more common than those with the sixth letter being 'n'...

Answer: ... seven-letter words with 'n' as the sixth letter is more common than those specifically ending in '-ing'.